YISD extends October intersession, TEA waiver approved

With authorization from the Texas Education Agency (TEA), the Ysleta Independent School District announced Thursday it is adding another week to its October intersession, effectively extending the current school break until Friday, Oct. 23.

In addition, TEA has approved a two-week waiver to delay the start of in-person instruction at the campuses for families that have chosen that option for their children.

As a result, all Ysleta ISD students at home and the Learning Hubs will resume Online Learning on Monday, Oct. 26. Teachers and staff will report to their work sites beginning Friday, Nov. 6, and Face-to-Face Learning at the campuses will begin Monday, Nov. 9.

To accommodate the one-week extension of the October intersession, the district will shorten the March intersession previously scheduled for March 8-19, 2021. The March intersession will now consist of a one-week Spring Break that takes place from March 15-19, 2021.

In the meantime, all essential Ysleta ISD personnel will continue reporting to work, and Central Office employees will continue working at 50 percent capacity. The district also strongly encourages all students, parents, and staff to monitor themselves for symptoms of COVID-19.
